Bringing Good News to a Hurting World

"How beautiful on the mountains are the feet of those who bring good news, who proclaim peace, who bring good tidings, who proclaim salvation." (Isaiah 52:7)

Isaiah wrote these words to God's people during their exile in Babylon, centuries before the birth of Jesus. Looking back, we see their fulfilment in Christ's coming and in every believer who shares the gospel today.

This is why WorldShare exists: to equip our ministry partners for this hope-filled mission. By proclaiming the Good News and demonstrating it through practical action, they are fulfilling Jesus' Great Commission to reach "the ends of the earth".

Despite rising costs and falling income, they faithfully continue to "bring good news" and "proclaim salvation" in a hurting world. As you read their stories, my hope is you'll be encouraged to pray, confident that the Lord is powerfully at work.

In this edition, discover how audio Bibles are giving people who cannot read daily access to Scripture and hear from pastors in N. Macedonia about the difference that regular, faithful giving through Cup of Hope is making. Read how WorldShare and our partners responded to the Ebola crisis in DR Congo and the devastating floods in Nepal, alongside reports of people continuing to receive help in Jesus' name in Gaza.

You'll also find our 2026 Charity Gifts catalogue, offering meaningful, ministry-specific ways to support these vital projects and many more.

Thank you for standing with WorldShare through prayer, sharing and giving. Together, we are serving the global Church and helping more people encounter the hope of Jesus.

Hope Where Fear Takes Hold

HEAL Africa, DR Congo

HEALTH RELIEF

In eastern DR Congo, trusted relationships are helping HEAL Africa bring medical care, reliable information and practical hope to communities facing Ebola, conflict and displacement.

When a patient with Ebola arrived at the HEAL Africa Hospital in Goma, staff acted quickly. They recognised the warning signs, arranged testing and isolated the patient. Team members who had initially provided care were also placed in preventive isolation.

Following an appeal, WorldShare sent £26,000 to help cover the additional costs of the isolation ward and vital biohazard safety measures. At that time, we were the only external organisation providing support.

After approximately 20 days of successful treatment, the patient was well enough to return home. It was an encouraging outcome, but Ebola cannot be contained through clinical care alone.

Fear of isolation and infection is preventing some people from seeking medical help. Rumours spread quickly, whilst reliable advice may struggle to reach those who need it most.

"We at HEAL Africa keep on sensitising the people."

Pytchen Kalonda, Project Coordinator

That is why trusted relationships are central to HEAL Africa's response. The Christian organisation runs a hospital with more than 250 beds and partners with over 90 churches and local organisations.

Pastors, chaplains and community leaders explain how Ebola spreads, challenge misinformation and encourage people to seek help promptly. With suitable training, they can also recognise when someone needs specialist medical or psychological care.

HEAL Africa's local networks distribute practical resources, including handwashing stations, soap and sanitiser. WorldShare has supported the hospital with medicines, protective supplies and hand sanitiser.

Care amid conflict

This work is unfolding amid prolonged conflict. An effective 'state of siege' is in place in North Kivu as a result of the takeover of the province by well-armed rebel groups. Goma's international airport and commercial banks have been closed since January 2025.

Border restrictions and divided areas of control make moving people, money and medical supplies difficult. HEAL Africa relies on relationships with providers in Uganda and Rwanda to bring essential equipment and medicines to the border.

Pytchen said, "The situation of war ... has created a trauma, a general trauma situation in the community."

Conflict has also forced families from their homes. Many seek safety in churches, schools and public spaces after losing possessions, livelihoods and support networks.

HEAL Africa's psychologists, trained chaplains, community teams and church partners respond to needs that are physical, emotional, social and spiritual. Yet the scale of need remains greater than the resources available.

Peace is the essential next step. It could reopen transport and banking, ease extreme poverty and allow communities to rebuild. Until then, HEAL Africa will continue to offer skilled treatment, trusted guidance, compassionate support and the hope of the gospel, all showing that an effective Ebola response, even in the midst of continued conflict, begins in the hospital but reaches far beyond its walls.

You Remembered Us

Christian Mission to Gaza

RELIEF

As Gaza receives less international attention, families there are still living with the devastating effects of conflict. Through practical help and the care of the local church, they are being reminded that they have not been forgotten.

Many families in Gaza remain in temporary shelters, with limited access to food, clean water and other essentials. Through Gaza Baptist Church, Christian Mission to Gaza (CMG) continues to provide practical support while building relationships with those facing an uncertain future.

Across August and September, the church provided 2,000 hot meals, 135 food baskets and food coupons, 18 tents, three truckloads of drinking water and clothing for 100 children.

Again and again, those receiving help expressed the same simple message: "You remembered us." The food, water and other essentials met urgent needs, but the care with which they were given also reassured families that they had not been forgotten.

For Sara, the help arrived just when her family needed it. She lives with Um Omar, her mother-in-law, and four-year-old Karam. Having lost both feet during the conflict, Sara now uses a wheelchair and finds everyday household tasks much more difficult.

"The food will sustain us for days, and the cleaning supplies take a huge burden from me because it is so difficult to clean while I am in this wheelchair," she explained. "We thank Gaza Baptist Church from our hearts."

An elderly grandfather, living in a tent with his wife and orphaned grandchildren, also spoke about what the support meant to them:

"These are not only food and cleaning packages. They are a message of love and brotherhood reaching us inside our tent and telling us that we are not alone."

Abu Thaer, his wife and their four children received one of the new tents. Their previous shelter was badly damaged, with large holes leaving them exposed to Gaza's intense summer sun. The new heavy-duty humanitarian tent, erected beneath additional shade, offers far better protection.The team also inspected each tent carefully, rejecting four that had been damaged by moisture rather than giving families inadequate shelters.

"Our old tent felt like it was melting over our heads," Abu Thaer said. "We could not even stay inside during the day. This new tent has brought life back to us and protected my children."

As the church serves, doors are also opening for conversations about faith. Recently, one person spent almost two hours asking a team member challenging questions about Jesus and Christianity. Although not ready to accept everything they heard, they listened carefully and acknowledged that much of it made sense.

Such conversations cannot be forced. They grow from trust, patient listening and Christ's love shown through both words and actions.

The needs in Gaza have not disappeared simply because they receive fewer headlines. CMG and Gaza Baptist Church remain present, providing practical help and showing families through their words and actions: you are remembered, you are seen and you are valued by Jesus.

A Place to Belong

Beginning of Life, Moldova

COMMUNITY

When Elena joined Beginning of Life's Urban Kids programme with her three-year-old son, Mihai, the family was going through a difficult season. Following divorce, Elena was raising three children while living with a visual impairment and facing significant financial pressures.

Mihai struggled to interact with other children, avoided contact with teachers and was often overwhelmed by his emotions. Through weekly activities, however, he gradually became more confident, beginning to initiate conversations and play with his peers.

For Elena, Urban Kids became much more than a place for her son's development. Having often felt isolated and judged by first impressions, she found acceptance, encouragement and a community where both she and Mihai belonged.

"A rich person is not someone who has a lot, but someone who has enough." Elena

That spirit of welcome extends across Beginning of Life's community programmes. Its children's groups provide inclusive places to learn, socialise and build relationships, while families receive practical and emotional support.

A new season of work is now bringing 125 Ukrainian refugees and 25 Moldovan single mothers into weekly support groups, alongside monthly humanitarian assistance. The practical help matters, but so do the relationships. Families facing displacement, isolation and financial hardship can find people who will listen, walk alongside them and remind them that they are not alone.

Many of our own communities include people who have come from other countries, including refugees, asylum seekers and international students. Beginning of Life's example invites us to notice them. A simple welcome, patient conversation or shared meal may be the beginning of genuine friendship and belonging.

EVANGELISM

Giving the Turkish Church a voice

Kanal Hayat, Türkiye

After Turkish worship songs recorded by Kanal Hayat reached millions of viewers, the ministry is taking small steps in faith towards relaunching Umut Kalesi, their dedicated worship channel.

In 2019, a small group from Denmark travelled to Ankara to work with Kanal Hayat, recording six Turkish worship songs over two evenings with local musicians and a professional production team.

The songs were released through Umut Kalesi, Kanal Hayat's youth-focused YouTube channel, which became known for its Turkish Christian music videos. Together, they have since been watched millions of times. Thousands of viewers have responded, not simply by liking the videos, but by expressing a desire to worship Jesus.

One comment has particularly stayed with the Kanal Hayat team:

"We thirst and hunger for such high-quality hymns."

Behind those words is a real cry from people longing to encounter God and worship him in their own language.

Filming in faith

Umut Kalesi closed around the time of the pandemic. While its existing videos remain online, nothing new has been released for several years.

Over the past 18 months, however, Kanal Hayat has managed to film some new songs. One is a music video for an existing song by Turkish Christian singer-songwriter Kayra. A second recording project was made possible by funds received through a recent offering.

The songs are being kept ready for the future, as Kanal Hayat prays for the music and funding needed to relaunch Umut Kalesi. Until then, the team continues to move forward in faith, using each opportunity and resource God provides.

Recording worship video

Why home-grown worship is so important

Translated worship songs can be valuable, but they do not always express how Turkish believers naturally think, pray and speak about God. The Turkish Church has its own stories, shaped by experiences that can include coming to faith from a Muslim background, opposition from family, loneliness and discrimination.

Kayra explains why music written within the culture matters:

"Every culture has its own voice, its own flavour. Although much of the human experience of suffering, yearning, joy, gratitude and adoration is universal, the way we express it is different. Metaphors can be different, poetry can be different and, without doubt, the style of music can be different."

For Kayra, translated music remains valuable, but original songs connect with people differently:

"Translated songs take us so far and that is great, but the spirit and heart engage at a different level when they sing their own tunes in their own words."

Kayra

Original Turkish worship music can give local believers a more natural way to express their faith, with songs shaped by their own language, culture and experiences.

This also matters for those who are exploring Christianity. In Türkiye, the Christian faith is often seen as foreign or Western. Hearing Turkish people worship Jesus in their own language can help show that following him is not tied to another country or culture.

Music can reach people who might never enter a church. Someone searching online for hope may discover a worship song, listen privately at home or receive a video from a friend. A song could become a first encounter with Jesus.

A source of encouragement

"There are not enough high-quality recordings of Turkish worship songs in Türkiye," explains Turkish Christian singer-songwriter and musician Ümit. "Believers are eagerly longing to hear well-recorded worship songs in their own language."

These songs accompany believers in their daily lives and are used at conferences and Christian gatherings. Ümit believes the new recordings will be a valuable source of encouragement and blessing for Turkish Christian communities.

Kanal Hayat's vision is to support Turkish Christian songwriters and musicians as they create fresh, original worship music. Through professional recording and filming, their songs could equip local churches, encourage believers and reach people searching for hope.

HELP TURKISH WORSHIP FIND ITS VOICE

Kanal Hayat has already filmed several new songs in faith, but further funding is needed to prepare more music and relaunch Umut Kalesi.

This year, you can support this work directly through WorldShare's Charity Gifts. Our 'Online Worship Videos' gift will help Turkish Christian musicians create and share original worship music that equips local churches, encourages believers and reaches people searching for hope.

Fundraising in the skies to relief on the ground

Andrew launches our Miles for Myanmar campaign from 15,000ft!

On Thursday 10th September, WorldShare CEO, Andrew, jumped out of a plane to launch the final push to complete the girls' dormitory at Hope Orphanage in Myanmar.

It was a beautiful sunny morning at Hibaldstow airfield. After a thorough safety briefing, Andrew was fully kitted up and assigned his tandem partner, Charlie. Fundraising Manager, Vanessa, with her feet planted firmly on the ground and the sun in her eyes, just managed to capture Andrew's descent and landing on camera.

After the jump, Andrew said, "That was a long way up, but it was an incredible experience. Plus, I landed in one piece, so I'm back in my wife's good books again!"

A big thank you to everyone who sponsored Andrew, helping raise over £9,000 towards the £24,900 Miles for Myanmar target.

Nepal Flood Appeal Update

Thank you to everyone who faithfully gave in support of the Nepal Flood Emergency Appeal following the devastating flash floods on 26th August. To date, WorldShare has sent over £25,000 to our partner on the ground, Good Friends of Nepal. As a result, they have distributed relief packages to 260 families so far and have plans in place for further distribution.

The situation remains dire. Thousands are missing including church pastors and believers. Lack of road access continues to be a challenge, the badly injured cannot access the necessary treatment and flood victims whose homes and livelihoods were swept away are struggling to live.

Please continue to pray for Nepal, our local Christian partner there and those who have lost their loved ones and homes.

Celebrating 35 years!

This October, Clare Hill celebrated 35 years of faithful service as WorldShare's longest-serving employee. During that time, Clare has worked under three CEOs, spoken with countless supporters and become a living encyclopaedia of all things WorldShare!

Her generous nature was evident from the beginning. At 18, Clare worked part time for WorldShare and another Christian organisation. When the colleague sharing her other role needed additional hours, Clare selflessly gave up her own. The following day, WorldShare offered Clare a full-time position.

That same kindness and willingness to help others has characterised Clare's service ever since. We are incredibly grateful for her dedication to WorldShare, our ministry partners, supporters and colleagues over the past 35 years. Clare truly is a superstar!

Faithful generosity beyond your lifetime

Clare's story is a wonderful reminder of the difference one faithful life can make.

By leaving a gift to WorldShare in your Will, you can continue your faithful generosity beyond your lifetime, helping trusted Christian partners bring practical help and lasting hope to communities around the world.

After providing for those closest to you, even a small percentage of your estate could make a meaningful difference for generations to come.

Helping Rik Stay in School

JKPS, India

EDUCATION

After loss and financial hardship placed Rik's education at risk, support through JKPS helped him remain in school and look towards the future.

For Rik's family, living in a disadvantaged rural community on the outskirts of Kolkata, money had always been tight. His father worked as a cycle rickshaw puller, while his mother cared for the family at home. Despite the difficulties they faced, they were determined that their children should receive an education and have the opportunity to build a better future.

That determination was tested when Rik's father's health deteriorated and he could no longer work regularly. His mother found employment as a domestic worker to help support the family, but their financial difficulties continued. Eventually, Rik's older brother had to leave school and become the family's main breadwinner.

Then, in October 2023, the family experienced a devastating loss when Rik's brother was killed in a road accident.

Alongside their grief, the family suddenly faced the loss of their main source of income. They became reliant on help from neighbours and relatives simply to afford food, and Rik was at risk of having to leave school.

Thankfully, JKPS was already supporting Rik through its child sponsorship programme. He had joined the programme in 2021, receiving practical help with the costs of his education. JKPS provided notebooks, pens, textbooks, shoes, an umbrella and a school uniform, as well as covering his school admission fees.

At a time when his family was struggling to meet even their most basic needs, this support meant that Rik's education could continue.

He also began attending JKPS's Knowledge Hub, where he received additional tuition and a safe place to learn. With this support around him, Rik was able to concentrate on his studies while his parents began the difficult process of rebuilding their lives.

The programme has given Rik opportunities to develop his creativity and confidence too. He has discovered a particular interest in drawing and has taken part in competitions, receiving awards for his work.

Today, 12-year-old Rik is studying in Grade 6 and remains committed to his education. His father has been able to return to work, and his mother is once again employed as a domestic worker. Although the family continues to recover from all they have been through, their situation is gradually becoming more stable.

"JKPS has supported my education and taught me valuable lessons about caring for my parents, dedicating myself to my studies and showing love to others," says Rik. "My family and I are deeply grateful for the support during our toughest times."

For Rik, sponsorship has provided far more than books and a school uniform. It has protected his opportunity to learn during an incredibly difficult chapter in his family's life and helped him believe that his circumstances do not have to determine his future.

Hearing the Word, Sharing the Light

Summer Appeal Update

EVANGELISM

Your generosity last summer in support of audio Bibles and Bible lanterns has truly been a blessing in South Asia.

Audio Bibles have enabled non-literate communities to hear, understand and embrace the good news of Jesus Christ, while Bible lanterns have helped our partner's workers to overcome the challenges of conducting house fellowships and outreach events in rural villages after sunset.

Benita* had never attended a formal school. Unable to read or write, she often struggled to remember the Bible verses she heard during church gatherings.

Her journey of faith began through field outreach. As she listened to the message, Benita's curiosity grew into faith. But one challenge remained. She could hear the Word, but had no way of returning to it on her own.

That changed when she received an audio Bible. She can now listen to the Bible repeatedly, whenever she wants, and at her own pace. This has given her a greater sense of independence in her spiritual journey, particularly significant for someone who has never had the opportunity to develop literacy skills.

*name changed for security reasons

For Benita, and others like her, audio Bibles provide an important bridge to accessing Scripture. Benita's story is not simply about receiving an audio Bible. It's about a growing relationship with God through His Word.

Luke* has served for nearly three years as a Community Development Worker, ministering to his own community.

Farming and daily wage work fill people's days, so fellowship and outreach happen in the evening once everyone is home.

For Luke, darkness was the obstacle. Power cuts were frequent and some rural areas had little or no lighting, so visiting people after sunset, or reaching villages farther from home, was always challenging.

*name changed for security reasons

Through your support, Luke received a Life Light Audio Bible Lantern. Solar-charged and portable, it goes wherever he goes, lighting his path between villages and providing light for the fellowships he leads.

Luke can now reach villages that were too far away to visit after dark, and a power cut no longer means cutting an evening gathering short. A limitation that once shaped his ministry has been removed, allowing it to grow instead.

Thank you to every WorldShare supporter who gave generously to this project. Your support demonstrates how faith can grow when barriers to hearing God's Word are removed.

A Cup of Hope for Faithful Pastors

Evangelical Church in North Macedonia

EVANGELISM

Supporters of WorldShare's Cup of Hope initiative provide regular financial support for pastors in Eastern Europe who live by faith as they serve their congregations and communities.

Here are a few pastors' testimonies from the Evangelical Church in North Macedonia who have received Cup of Hope funding this year.

Serving through tragedy

"My name is Venco Nakov and I am the pastor of the Evangelical Church in Kočani. We thank you for the gift we have received. Our good Father provides everything we need for our lives and ministry in the Kingdom of God.

Venco & Katya Nakov

I founded this church some 32 years ago. I came here from my hometown of Shtip to plant the church and since then we have been working on planting two more churches. It is not easy and we have faced some death threats. However, we are moving forward.

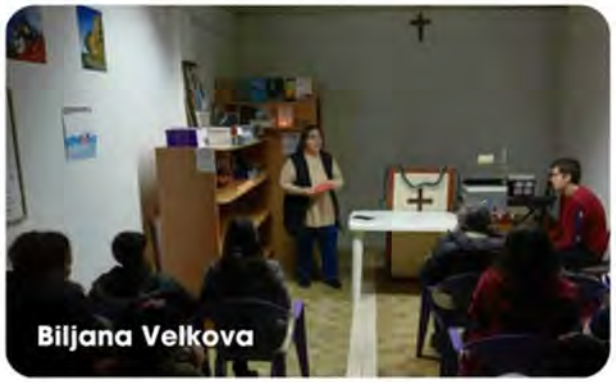

You may remember that, on 16 March 2025, a devastating fire broke out at a nightclub in Kočani. It resulted in the deaths of 63 people and left around 200 injured, some with lifelong consequences. We are praying and asking God how we can be more involved and effective in helping the town to heal."

Caring for those in need

"I wish you God's blessings. As the leader of the Evangelical Church in Probishtip, I preach at the Sunday worship services, hold regular prayer meetings and visit members of the church, especially the elderly.

I also visit people who do not yet believe, care for those in need and support the sick with donations to help cover the cost of their treatment. I am deeply grateful for the blessing you sent me. May God multiply it by a hundred and bless you abundantly, for whoever gives generously will have even more."

Biljana Velkova

God's provision at the right time

"My wife and I have served the Lord since 2001. I met the Lord in 1998 and was baptised. God called me to pastoral service in 2003, and I was ordained in 2008. I serve the Evangelical Church in Bitola, and like many, my service is filled with challenges and times of sorrow, but also with much joy in the Lord. There is no greater joy than serving God. Many thanks for your generosity, it came at just the right time. God bless you according to His riches."

A big hit at week one of the Keswick Convention

WorldShare had the privilege of exhibiting at week one of the Keswick Convention back in July, joined by Wendy Thiessen, Volunteer Director of PiFò Haiti and Vivian Kityo, Founder and Ambassador of Wakisa Ministries in Uganda.

The big success was the colouring competition which drew children and their grown-ups to the WorldShare stand to hear all about the work of our ministry partners.

During the week we were also able to record six podcasts, including our visitors, Wendy and Vivian, three of the Keswick speakers and the Director of Medical Mission Network, one of our funders.

Kenton & Leona tied the knot in style

A big thank you to the happy couple who got married in June. They raised over £500 for WorldShare by asking their loved ones for donations in lieu of wedding gifts. What a wonderful idea!

Sad news

We received very sad news in mid-September that one of our Board of Trustees, Adele Pilkington, passed away unexpectedly. Adele had been a WorldShare trustee for almost three years and will be dearly missed by everyone.

Podcast - On Mission with WorldShare

At the start of the summer, we launched our new podcast, 'On Mission with WorldShare'. Each episode explores what it means to serve missionally through conversations with our own ministry partner leaders and others who are serving the Lord both around the world and closer to home.

Previous episodes have featured our partners in Guatemala, DR Congo and Ghana with upcoming interviews from those serving in Haiti, Uganda and more.

You can listen wherever you get your podcasts and even watch the interviews on Spotify or YouTube.

Whether you have a visual impairment or simply prefer voice controls, you can find us on smart speakers by saying 'Play the podcast On Mission with WorldShare'.

An open door in Lumalas

Medical Ambassadors Foundation, Albania

EVANGELISM

When a new outreach team began visiting homes in Lumalas, they discovered that God had already been at work in one woman's life.

Before Medical Ambassadors Foundation's outreach team began visiting Lumalas, they prayed for God to guide them to the right community. What they did not know was that He was already preparing the way.

One day, a woman named Lefteria found a children's Bible that someone had thrown away. Rather than leaving it there, she took it home and read it from cover to cover. Sometime later, she became one of the first women in Lumalas to welcome the team into her home.

During a visit in late May, Lefteria and one of her friends began talking with the women from the team about Kurban Bajram, the Muslim festival of sacrifice, which commemorates Abraham's willingness to offer his son in obedience to God.

The conversation provided an opportunity to share the story of Abraham and Isaac and explain how Jesus, the Son of God, became the perfect sacrifice for our sins. As they talked, Lefteria responded openly.

"I want to become a believer like you," she said. "I want to be saved, and I want to have peace when I sleep. I want God to come into my heart."

"I want to be saved, and I want to have peace when I sleep."

There in her home, Lefteria prayed with the team, confessed her sin and placed her faith in Jesus. When they had finished praying, tears of joy filled her eyes as the women welcomed a new sister in Christ.

Lefteria's faith soon began to shape her everyday life. During another Muslim festival, the village imam visited her home and offered her meat from the mosque. Lefteria told him about the women who had been visiting her and explained that she had come to know God and chosen to follow Jesus. Because of that decision, she did not want to accept the meat.

Then, in August, Lefteria took another courageous step. At MAF's annual picnic and baptism celebration, she was baptised in front of family, friends and others from the community, publicly declaring her faith in Jesus.

Through Community Health Evangelism, MAF's teams serve communities in practical ways while building relationships and sharing the hope of the gospel. When the team first entered Lumalas, they could not see what God was already doing. They simply prayed, went where He led and accepted an invitation into Lefteria's home.

Like them, we can ask God to show us where He is already at work in our own communities. A conversation, an act of kindness or a willingness to listen may open an unexpected opportunity to share His love.

Handwashing stations are an important part of HEAL Africa's disease prevention work.
